9.30am– 2:00pm

Saturday 9^h November 2019

Dear Colleagues

Advancements in Artificial Intelligence (AI) and robotics have been making the headlines for some time now. There is clearly a growing interest in humanoid robots and the varied issues raised by their interactions with humans. How does this speak into Christian ethics?

Professor John Wyatt is co-Principal Investigator for a research project based at the Faraday Institute investigating the implications for human self-understanding of recent advances in artificial intelligence and robotic technology.

He continues to lecture at undergraduate and postgraduate level both nationally and internationally in topics relating to biomedical ethics and the wider implications of technological advances. He participates frequently in public meetings and debates and occasional radio and television programmes concerning topical issues in biomedical ethics.

Book by email to Hillary Henry HHenry@chelmsford.anglican.org so that we can arrange catering and other practicalities. The cost of the day will be £15 per person, with a concessionary rate of £5 for retirees and clergy with PTO. Closing date 2nd November 2019. If not eligible for grant, or if your grant is already spent, you can pay by cheque (or cash on the day).
